Dear Friends,

Happy holidays and welcome to The Christmas Revels. We’re glad you’re here. While you are getting settled in, let me share some updates and special thanks with you.

We’re buzzing with new initiatives to complete our three-year plan to reinvigorate the organization. Revels Education has expanded with morris and rapper dance teams for tweens and teens and a new afterschool Sing with Revels program for kids 8 and up. The inimitable David Coffin has taken on the new role of artist-in-residence, and he has brought his acclaimed school enrichment shows under our umbrella. See page 57 for more about how you can bring David to your local school. And, we’re working behind the scenes to plan our next FRINGE performance to explore the boundaries of tradition. Revels.org, our revamped website, has all the details.

The Season of Giving

As our friends in public broadcasting say, we rely on “people like you.” Individuals provide the largest source of charitable support that keeps Revels running. Did you know that “people like you” give 20 times more than our total government support and 5 times more than our foundation and corporate support? So more to the point: we are relying on the actual “you.”

If you haven’t yet made a gift in 2014, now’s the time! The Clark Charitable Trust is once again matching new and renewal donations dollar for dollar up to $5,000. That means your tax-deductible gift will be doubled: your $50 will become $100, your $250 can become $500, etc. Give online at Revels.org or pick up a donor envelope at the table in the lobby.

We also thank our valued media sponsors, as well as Benefactor Partners Cambridge Trust Company and Grand Circle Cruise Line and Contributing Partner Eaton Vance Investment Managers.

From everyone in the cast, crew, staff, and board, thank you for being part of the Revels family.

Welcome Yule!

Steve Smith, Executive Director

P.S. Take a chance on our Danube River Cruise Raffle during intermission. Each ticket is just $10 and you could win a fabulous trip to visit Europe’s Christmas markets in December 2015. Best of all, 100% of the proceeds support Revels. See the ad on page 14 for more info!

1. OVERTURE
Cambridge Symphonic Brass Ensemble
George Emlen uses “Hark! the Herald Angels Sing” as the foundation for this new composition for brass quintet and timpani.

2. STREET CRIES
The Royal Albert Chorus • The Cheapside Children
Victorian London street vendors of every description invented cries and songs that potential buyers would associate with their goods or services—and could distinguish through the din of many others.

3. HARK! THE HERALD ANGELS SING
The Royal Albert Chorus • The Cheapside Children • Cambridge Symphonic Brass Ensemble
Charles Wesley’s famous carol was first published in 1739 as “Hymn for Christmas Day,” originally leading off with “Hark, how all the welkin rings.” It was matched in 1856 to music that Felix Mendelssohn had written in 1840 to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the first Gutenberg printing press and which he felt certain would never be compatible with a sacred text. The brass arrangement is by George Emlen.

   All Sing —

   Hark! the herald angels sing glory to the newborn king;
   Peace on earth and mercy mild, God and sinners reconciled.
   Joyful all ye nations rise, join the triumph of the skies;
   With the angelic host proclaim Christ is born in Bethlehem.
   Hark! the herald angels sing glory to the newborn king;

   Christ, by highest heaven adored, Christ, the everlasting Lord,
   Late in time behold him come, offspring of the Virgin’s womb.
   Veiled in flesh the Godhead see; hail the incarnate Deity!
   Pleased as man with man to dwell, Jesus, our Immanuel.
   Hark! the herald angels sing glory to the newborn king;

   Mild he lays his glory by, born that man no more may die,
   Born to raise the sons of earth, born to give them second birth.
   Risen with healing in his wings, light and life to all he brings,
   Hail, the Sun of Righteousness! hail, the heaven-born Prince of Peace!
   Hark! the herald angels sing glory to the newborn king.

4. MORRIS DANCE
The Pinewoods Morris Men • Cambridge Symphonic Brass Ensemble
Northwest morris dancing, so named for its association with the northwest region of England, is distinctive for its heavy, rhythmic stepping. The dancers are just as likely to be women as men, and mixed-sex teams are common. The dance in our show is “Colne Royal.” The tunes are “Ninety Five,” “Oyster Girl,” and “Rig-a-Jig.”

5. PENTONVILLE
The Royal Albert Chorus
A carol from the West Gallery tradition, in which singers and available instruments supported congregational singing from the loft at the rear of the church, in the western end of the building. The famous text, assumed to be written by the prolific poet, playwright, and librettist Nahum Tate, enjoys countless musical settings, probably more than any other hymn. This one is by Canterbury bookseller and composer William Marsh. His setting of this text is a favorite among the pub carolers in Sheffield, where the tradition of secular caroling is still vibrant.

6. BUSKING
Marge Dunn • Billy Meleady • Mark Jaster • Sabrina Selma Mandell
Street performers or “buskers” earned their money by delighting street audiences. “Little Tich” with his big boots was a favorite comedian and dancer in the music halls at the turn of the century.

7. I’LL BE UP YOUR WAY NEXT WEEK
Billy Meleady, soloist • The Cheapside Children • The Crystal Palace Orchestra
A cheeky chimney sweep song from the North of England, attributed to Doug Berry. Our version was taken from the repertoire of the Player’s Theatre, which flourished in London as a “Victorian Music Hall” throughout the Second World War and persisted until the turn of the century (mostly due to its use as a location for the popular BBC television series “The Good Old Days.”) The sole surviving Victorian music hall building in London is the crumbling but magnificent Wilton’s on the edge of the Old City; it has new life as an arts performance center.

8. IT WAS MY FATHER’S CUSTOM
David Coffin, soloist • Megan Henderson, piano • The Royal Albert Chorus
This jolly parlour song captures all the details of a Victorian Christmas dinner and surrounding festivities. The words are by James Stonehouse and the music is by Frederick Shrivail.
9. COUNTRY DANCE
The Royal Albert Dancers · The Crystal Palace Orchestra
Many English country dances current in the 17th and 18th centuries were still common in the 19th. The Female Sayler, seen here, is among the most popular of them.

10. CHILDREN’S SONGS AND GAMES
The Cheapside Children
“Oranges and Lemons” is a popular children’s song and game in which players are “caught out” if they happen to pass under the arch (formed by a pair of children) and are trapped at the word “head.” The tune evokes typical change-ringing patterns; both St. Clement Danes and St. Clement Eastcheap lay claim to being the churches referred to in the first line of the song. “Rosy Apple, Lemon and a Pear” is a “choosing” game played around the British Isles. In older versions the sixth line is “lead her to the altar.”

11. CHRISTMAS BOXES
The Cheapside Children · The Royal Albert Chorus · The Crystal Palace Orchestra
This nostalgic tribute to “old Father Christmas” was written in 1874 by Alfred Scott Gatty. “Snap-dragon” was a parlour game in which a pile of brandy-soaked raisins were set afire. Players reached through the flame to take a raisin and extinguish the flame by eating it.

12. MARSHFIELD PAPER BOYS PLAY
Walter Locke, Father Christmas · Jamie Jaffe, Saucy Jack · Billy Meleady, Little Man John · Mark Jaster, King William · Sabrina Selma Mandell, Doctor Phinex
A traditional hero-combat play from the village of Marshfield in Gloucestershire. The “disguise” costumes were made by tearing newspaper into strips and sewing them to a “cowgown.”

13. GOD BLESS THE MASTER
The Royal Albert Chorus
“Midway between a wassail and a hymn” is the way the Watersons described this ritual carol in their 1965 recording Frost and Fire. Wassails are sung by door-to-door carolers during the Christmas season and are meant to bring good luck to the household and its inhabitants, especially if a bit of food or drink is offered in return. This tune and set of words, found in North Waltham, Hampshire, will sound familiar to Christmas Revels audiences as a close relative of “The Sussex Mummers’ Carol.”

14. BRIGHT ANGELS
The Royal Albert Chorus · The Crystal Palace Orchestra
Another carol from the West Gallery repertoire. This one features “symphonies,” or passages for instruments only. Thomas Hardy, whose family was deeply involved in music making in rural parishes, describes in great detail the role of instruments in the church service in his novel Under the Greenwood Tree.

15. BUSKING
Mark Jaster, saw · Sabrina Selma Mandell, banjolele
Popular in the 1900’s, the musical saw has an intriguing sound that resembles the theremin, which was introduced in the 1920’s.

16. PAST TWELVE O’CLOCK
Matthew Johnsen, Watchman
The night watchman performed the vital function of keeping townsfolk apprised of the hour throughout the night at a time when watches and clocks were not available to all households.

17. HE THAT SHALL ENDURE TO THE END
The Royal Albert Chorus · The Crystal Palace Orchestra
A chorus from Mendelssohn’s oratorio Elijah. England embraced the German composer as one of its own, as it had Handel a century earlier. After Handel’s Messiah, Mendelssohn’s Elijah was the most commonly performed large-scale work at the Crystal Palace and throughout London during the late 19th century.

18. THE SEED
David Gullette
A poem by Patrick Swanson.

19. THE LORD OF THE DANCE
David Coffin, soloist · The Pinewoods Morris Men · Cambridge Symphonic Brass Ensemble

All Sing & Dance—
Dance, then, wherever you may be;
I am the lord of the dance, said he,
And I’ll lead you all wherever you may be,
And I’ll lead you all in the dance, said he.

Thank you for supporting Revels!
20. HAIL TO BRITANNIA
The Cheapside Children • The Royal Albert Chorus
The Crystal Palace Orchestra • Cambridge Symphonic Brass Ensemble

An anonymous children’s song with nursery rhymes from The Only True Mother Goose Melodie, published in Boston in 1835.

21. HARK! WHAT MEAN THOSE HOLY VOICES?
The Royal Albert Chorus • The Crystal Palace Orchestra
Cambridge Symphonic Brass Ensemble

Sir Arthur Sullivan, best known for his 14 operettas in collaboration with W.S. Gilbert, was primarily a classical composer, with 23 full-length operas to his credit. In this Christmas anthem, scored originally for choir and organ, he used an 1819 poem by John Cawood, who was a minor church cleric and writer of hymns.

22. GOOD KING WENCESLAS
David Coffin and Ruby Tricca or Orly Diaz, soloists • The Royal Albert Chorus
The Crystal Palace Orchestra

The words to this quintessentially Victorian carol and their moralistic sentiment are the work of Anglican minister John Mason Neale, who set them to the 14th-century spring carol “Tempus Adest Floridum” (The Time Is Near for Flowering) in 1853. Wenceslas, or Václav, was actually a 10th-century Bohemian duke whose reputation as a benevolent ruler is questionable but has passed into legend.

23. ROW THE BOAT, WHITTINGTON
David Coffin, soloist

An early 17th-century round, pays homage to Dick Whittington, who, according to popular legend, rose from poverty to become mayor of London three times. Dick Whittington and his Cat was a popular pantomime in the late 19th century.

24. DONA NOBIS PACEM
David Coffin, soloist

“Dona Nobis Pacem” (Give Us Peace) is our traditional round for peace.

All Sing

25. CHRISTMAS BELLS AT SEA
David Coffin, soloist • Megan Henderson, piano

In addition to many theater, choral, and orchestral works, Arthur Sullivan wrote more than 100 songs for solo voice, the most famous of which is probably “The Lost Chord.” This 1875 song, based on a poem by Charles Lamb Kenney, shows his seemingly effortless ability to create beautiful melodies and affecting harmonies without resorting to the sentimentality that afflicted much Victorian vocal music.

26. DON’T DILLY DALLY ON THE WAY
Sarah deLima, soloist • The Royal Albert Chorus
The Cheapside Children • The Crystal Palace Orchestra

A music hall song from 1919, written by Fred Leigh and Charles Collins and popularized by Marie Lloyd. The song, while humorous, describes a “moonlight flit,” a quick move to another location with all the family possessions piled on a van. It was a desperate enough solution for those who did not have enough money to pay the rent at the end of the month.

27. WHEN FATHER PAPERED THE PARLOUR
Marge Dunn and Billy Meleady, soloists • The Royal Albert Chorus
The Cheapside Children • The Crystal Palace Orchestra

This popular music hall song by R.P. Weston and Fred J. Barnes dates from 1910.

```markdown
All Sing

When Father papered the parlour you couldn’t see Pa for paste,
Dabbing it here! dabbing it there! paste and paper everywhere;
Mother was stuck to the ceiling, the kids were stuck to the floor—
You’ve never seen a blooming family so stuck up before.
28. VLAD AND OLGA: TURKS WITH TEETH OF STEEL
Mark Jaster ∙ Sabrina Selma Mandell

29. DOWN AT THE OLD BULL AND BUSH
Sarah deLima, soloist ∙ The Royal Albert Chorus
The Cheapside Children ∙ The Crystal Palace Orchestra
A popular Victorian song by Harry von Tilzer that celebrates a famous Hampstead pub where Londoners still go for a pint of beer. Florrie Forde, a favorite music-hall singer, was particularly known for singing this song.

All Sing —
Come, come, come and make eyes at me
down at the old Bull and Bush,
Come, come, drink some port wine with me
down at the old Bull and Bush.
Hear the little German band...
Just let me hold your hand, dear!
Do, do come and have a drink or two down at the old Bull and Bush. (Bush! Bush!)

30. GREAT THINGS
The Royal Albert Chorus
A Thomas Hardy poem in praise of cider, dancing, and love, set to “The Merry Month of May,” a traditional tune found in the Hardy family manuscripts. The arrangement is by Dave Townsend.

31. CINDERELLA
Billy Meleady, Billy ∙ Marge Dunn, Cinderella ∙ Mark Jaster, Velveeta
Sabrina Selma Mandell, Twinky ∙ David Gullette, Baron ∙ Sarah deLima, Fairy Godmother
Ned Gulley, Prince Charming
“Panto,” or “pantomime,” is a form of traditional British theater involving standard story lines, slapstick, risqué humor, music, dance, spectacular costumes, and stage effects. The characters and situations in contemporary pantos trace back to the commedia dell’arte, a Renaissance entertainment with roots in the Roman theater.

32. THE LANCERS
The Royal Albert Dancers ∙ The Crystal Palace Orchestra
The Lancers is a set of quadrille figures first danced in England in 1817 and still danced in some British country districts and in the US today. We use a medley of Savoyard tunes from Iolanthe and The Mikado by Arthur Sullivan.

33. HALLELUJAH, AMEN
The Royal Albert Chorus ∙ The Crystal Palace Orchestra ∙ Cambridge Symphonic Brass Ensemble
George Frederick Handel, a German who became an English citizen in 1727, has enjoyed enormous and continuous popularity in England through the centuries. He wrote this chorus for his 1747 oratorio Judas Maccabaeus.

34. AWAY IN A MANGER
The Cheapside Children ∙ The Royal Albert Chorus ∙ The Crystal Palace Orchestra
Victorian values and styles characterized the latter 19th century in the US as well as in England. The words to this famous lullaby appeared in 1884 in The Myrtle, a Boston publication. Philadelphia hymn composer William J. Kirkpatrick wrote the tune used here in 1895.

35. THE SHORTEST DAY
David Gullette
This poem, written for the first Victorian Revels by Susan Cooper in 1977, has become a traditional part of Christmas Revels performances throughout the country. We have restored one line from the original for this production.

All Shout—
WELCOME YULE!

36. SUSSEX MUMMERS’ CAROL
The Company
This traditional carol is sung as an ending to the folk play in Horsham, Sussex. In all American cities where Revels is produced annually, this carol is sung with the audience at the conclusion of each performance. The brass arrangement is by Brian Holmes, with descant and third verse harmonization by Ralph Vaughan Williams.

FEATURING

PATRICK SWANSON began his career in London as an actor at the Arts Theatre in the West End. In 1969, he toured Europe with La MaMa Plexus and subsequently got his world theater education from Ellen Stewart at La MaMa E.T.C. in New York. His numerous directing projects include opera, ensemble, music theater and circus. He was a founding stage director of Circus Flora.

Paddy taught acting and improvisation at the London Academy of Dramatic Art (L.A.M.D.A.), the London Drama Centre, and New York University. He served as artistic director of the Castle Hill Festival at Castle Hill in Ipswich, MA, directing and co-producing opera and theater works, including the premiere of Julie Taymor’s Liberty’s Taken and Peter Sellars’ production of Cosi fan Tutte. Other directing credits include Tristan and Isolde with the Boston Camerata at the Spoleto USA festival; Shirley Valentine by Willy Russell at Houston’s Alley Theatre and Boston’s Charles Playhouse; Happy Days by Samuel Beckett, The Caretaker by Harold Pinter, and two stage premieres at Gloucester Stage Company; Talking Heads by Alan Bennett; and Fighting Over Beverley by Israel Horowitz. His Actors’ Shakespeare Project production of Shakespeare’s King Lear with Alvin Epstein was nominated for three 2006 Elliot Norton awards. For A.S.P. he subsequently directed The Tempest and The Coveted Crown (Henry IV parts one and two). His most recent acting performance (after a 30-year hiatus) was for Gloucester Stage’s 20th anniversary production of Fighting over Beverley.

For Revels, Paddy has directed a contemporary version of the medieval mystery plays, The Mysteries by Tony Harrison, co-produced by Revels and Shakespeare & Company, and Britten’s opera Noye’s Fludde. He writes and directs all Cambridge Revels scripts and with music director George Emlen, serves as consultant to the other nine Revels production companies.

GEORGE W. EMLEN is a conductor, composer, arranger, songleader, and music educator. He has directed choral ensembles all his adult life in churches, schools, and theatrical productions throughout New England. A graduate of Dartmouth College, he earned his Master of Music degree in choral conducting at the New England Conservatory of Music, where he studied with Lorna Cooke de Varaon. While living in Maine, he founded and conducted the Acadia Choral Society and conducted the Oratorio Chorale and the Mount Desert Summer Chorale. His choral compositions and arrangements are published by Lawson-Gould and Thorpe.

George has been the music director of Revels since 1984. With the artistic director he creates the Revels stage productions, selects and trains the adult and children’s choruses, researches and arranges musical selections, and engages guest artists. He directs and produces Revels recordings, and edits and engraves all of Revels’ published musical materials, including choral octavos and songbooks. George conducts the Revels Singers, a community chorus devoted to performing the Revels choral repertoire. He assists the Revels production companies in developing their annual productions. He also leads public singing events such as Revels RiverSing, Spring Sing, and Revels pub sings.

DAVID COFFIN has performed throughout New England since 1980. Widely known for his rich baritone voice as well as for his impressive collection of musical instruments includes concertinas, recorders, penny-whistles, bombardos, gemshorns, cornamuse, shawm, rauschpfeife—or, as he explains, “generally anything that requires a lot of hot air.” At the heart of David’s work is his extensive collection of songs from the maritime tradition. To date, David has recorded four solo CDs, his latest, Last Trip Home, was released in 2009 and features his daughter, Linea, also a Revels performer.

David has performed with Revels since 1980 as a singer, instrumentalist and, since 1991, as Master of Ceremonies. This year, he was appointed Revels’ Artist-in-Residence. David now performs his highly acclaimed school enrichment programs across the state under the Revels Education banner. He has appeared in over 55 different Revels productions. In addition to his school enrichment programs, he runs tours of Boston Harbor during the summer months, leading over 5,000 inner-city children on boat trips to George’s and Spectacle Islands. He also directs the narration program for Boston Harbor Cruises and hosts the Brunch Cruises every weekend from May to October.

SARAH DELIMA has appeared in English Victorian Revels productions here in Cambridge, in Hanover, N.H. and in Washington, D.C. She is absolutely delighted to be back. Recent credits include Mrs. Shubert in Shear Madness, Mrs. Higgins in My Fair Lady (North Shore Music Circus), Ida in Cemetery Club (IRNE award), Madam Dilly in On the Town and Big Edie in Grey Gardens. Favorite roles include Mrs. Lovett in Sweeney Todd, Mrs. Clackett in Noises Off, Lady Bracknell in The Importance of Being Earnest and Clairee in Steel Magnolias. Many thanks to Paddy and the whole Revels family for a lovely warm welcome and a huge amount of fun!

MARGE DUNN is thrilled to make her Revels debut! Previous Boston credits include Beatrice in Much Ado About Nothing, Juliet in R+J (Boston Theater Company), Lady Macbeth in Macbeth (BrownBox Theatre Project), Louise in Gypsy (NextDoor Center for the Arts). She is a recurring face among the Wellesley Summer Theatre, and in 2012 was nominated for an IRNE award for And A Nightingale Sang. When not on stage she works as the technical director for theater at The Roxbury Latin School. Love to Dad and The Boys.
DAVID GULLETTE has been a fixture on the Boston/Cambridge theater scene for many years. In the ‘70s he played the title role in Emily Mann’s Macbeth at the Loeb Drama Center. On the same stage he played the Captain in Laurence Senelick’s production of Strindberg’s Dance of Death, and Jonathan Wild in Anything You Say Will Be Twisted. In recent years he has played the role of Vincentio in Andrei Serban’s ART production of The Taming of the Shrew, Cadmus in Katherine Walker’s The Bacchae, and three Actors’ Shakespeare Project productions: Escalus and Abhorson in Measure for Measure (2005), directed by Robert Walsh, the King of France in All’s Well That Ends Well (2006), directed by Benjamin Evett, and Alonso in The Tempest directed by Paddy Swanson (2008). He was one of the first editors of Ploughshares and is Literary Director of The Poets’ Theatre.

MARK JASTER studied with 20th-century masters Marcel Marceau and Etienne Decroux. He served as teaching assistant to Mr. Marceau and teaches frequently in artist residencies, theatres, and dance programs. Jaster has had a long career touring solo mime shows to countless venues, including Wolftrap’s Theater-in-the-Woods, the Philadelphia International Children’s Festival, The Cincinnati Playhouse, and The Edinburgh Fringe Festival. In addition to his performances in the Cambridge Christmas Revels as the Ghost of The Duke of Rutland (2010) and The Moon Foo (2011), he has appeared many times for over 20 years with the Washington Christmas Revels, and at The Maryland Renaissance Festival. Mark is a proud member of The Big Apple Circus’ Clown Care Unit, performing as Dr. Baldy at the Children’s National Medical Center in Washington, DC. Since 2006, he has co-directed Happenstance Theater with Sabrina Mandell, devising and appearing in critically acclaimed collaborative, original works of “Visual, Poetic Theater.”

WALTER LOCKE is making his first appearance as an actor in The Company We Keep and The Salt Girl this year. Locke attended the University of Connecticut and teaches at Brandeis University and Boston College. He is also a visual artist, tall-ship sailor, and poet. He proudly hails from Nova Scotia, Canada.

SABRINA SELMA MANDELL is thrilled to be joining the Cambridge Revels again this year. She first performed in the 40th anniversary show in 2010, and returned to play Etoile, the Star Fool in 2011. Sabrina is the founder and Artist Director of Happenstance Theatre (www.happenstancetheater.com), for whom she has written, produced and performed prolifically since the company’s founding in 2006. Recent productions include Impossible! A Happenstance Circus and The 4th Annual All-New Cabaret Macabre, inspired by the works of Edward Gorey, which was nominated for three Helen Hayes awards in 2014, including one for Sabrina’s costume design. She performs regularly as Doc Molly with the Big Apple Circus’ Clown Care Unit in DC and Baltimore, and as LaLa, partner to A Fool Named “O” at the Maryland Renaissance Festival. She is also a visual artist, tall-ship sailor, and poet. She proudly hails from Nova Scotia, Canada.

BILLY MELEDAY is delighted to be returning to perform with Revels once again. Recent productions include Faith Healer (Newton Nomatic Theater), The Belle of Belfast (EST/LA), The Last Will (Commonwealth Shakespeare Co.). He received the 2014 Best Actor award at this year’s 48 hour film festival in Boston and a 2013 Ovation award nomination for Best Featured Actor for his performance in The Belle of Belfast. Billy was resident Irish actor with The Sugan Theatre Co. for many years and received both Elliot Norton and IRNE awards for his work with Sugan as well as New Rep and Boston Playwrights Theatre. Earlier this year he was delighted to make his feature film debut opposite Johnny Depp in the Warner Bros. movie Black Mass due for release Sept. 2015.

JEFF ADELBERG Lighting Design This year marks Jeff’s 5th Christmas Revels. Jeff has designed over 150 productions here in Boston. The latter half of the 19th century was arguably the most prolific period of life-changing invention in the history of humankind. During Queen Victoria’s lifetime the mostly rural economy was transformed by the steam engine and the railway line. The deliberate patterns of agrarian life recorded in Thomas Hardy novels were wrenched into the new infrastructure of a dynamic global marketplace, and the quality of British life, for good or bad, was irrevocably changed. World maps of the period are mostly colored a dominant shade of pink to indicate the far-flung territories of the British Empire. Champion of this industrial revolution and beloved husband of Queen Victoria, Prince Albert spearheaded a movement to show off the splendors of the Empire along with the technological innovations that enabled Britain to lead the world. In parlours and salons, the conversations turned to the idea of a great industrial fair to which different countries would be invited to display their treasures and innovations. Architects were commissioned to create a glorious building to house the exhibition. Unfortunately the sheer size of the structure being contemplated made the designs extremely difficult. Plan after plan was submitted; some had foundations and walls so massive it would take years to build and others greatly exceeded the budget available. There were strenuous objections to the number of venerable trees in Hyde Park that would have to be removed during construction. In 1851, ten months before the exhibition was slated to open, 245 designs had been submitted. All were rejected as unworkable. Facing disaster, the committee created a new committee (with a longer title), headed by Isambard Kingdom Brunel, with a single instruction: to come up with a design worthy of the greatest exhibition in history, to begin construction in ten months, and to do it all within a shrunken and constrained budget. The building that they came up with was, as Bill Bryson describes it, “A thing of unhappy wonder. A vast, low dark shed of a building, pregnant with gloom, with all the spirit and playfulness of an abattoir.” Brunel’s contribution was an enormous iron dome some 200 feet across. Nobody knew how an iron dome of that weight could be lifted, or how deep the foundations would need to be to support it. Construction of the building would require 30 million bricks and both the cost and time required to build it was incalculable.

It really was the first public building where the classes found common ground...

Into this unfolding crisis stepped the calm figure of Joseph Paxton, a landscape gardener and hothouse designer whose latest accomplishment was designing a greenhouse to protect the lily collection of the Duke of Devonshire. He proposed a building constructed of prefabricated parts that stood on the ground like a tent. It consisted of an intricate network of slender iron rods sustaining walls of clear glass. The main body of the building was to be 1,851 feet long (in celebration of the year) and 408 feet wide. The height of the central transept would be 108 feet. The construction would occupy some 18 acres on the ground, while the total floor area was to be about 990,000 square feet (or about 23 acres). On the ground floor and galleries there would be more than 8 miles of space for display tables.

Within six months the building was complete, under budget, ready to receive the exhibits and astonishing the populace with its clear walls and ceilings that did not require interior lights, hence a “Crystal Palace.” The venerable trees were simply enclosed and provided a leafy shade to the delighted visitors.

After the international hoop-la of the opening ceremonies and several exclusive showings, the building was thrown open to the hoi polloi. Intrigued by the slogan “The world for a shilling,” six million people came to see the offerings of the 14,000 exhibitors. It really was the first public building where the classes found common ground (so to speak) in their reaction to such marvels as the impressive flushing toilets that were offered for the convenience of all. When the exhibition closed in October the building was taken down, piece by piece, and rebuilt at Sydenham Hill in Upper Norwood, overlooking London from the south, where it survived until the great fire of 1936. During these roughly 80 years of existence, the Crystal Palace was home to a wide range of entertainment—exhibitions, concerts with enormous orchestras and choruses, music hall acts, pantomimes, tight rope walkers, football matches, flower shows—anything that could bring in a large audience.

Of all the famous halls in London and the provinces, the Crystal Palace spanned the entire history of the music hall, from 1852 to 1936, from Victorian to Edwardian all the way to Variety in the 1930’s. Today it is memorialized in the name of a premier league football club and a tube stop. Interestingly, there are current plans commissioned by a consortium of English and Chinese developers to completely rebuild the Crystal Palace in Bromley in South East London. The latest news is that the “over-ambitious designs” have run into difficulties….

The communities that we create on stage are fictional versions of life; as one critic put it, “...Revels is the village that should have been.”

History and drama have vied for attention on the stage over the years and that is certainly true within our Revels tradition. Henry VIII, Elizabeth I, Leonardo da Vinci, The Doge of Venice and Will Kempe have all trod the Revels boards, but more as fictional characters that helped to tell a good story than as real historical people. Our chorus sings King Henry’s madrigal accurately but the King himself is a fiction in a historically accurate costume. In Revels we strive in our way to be respectful of the truth. We seek out tradition bearers and performers from the cultures we represent with the goal of achieving an authentic tone and we research our program notes pretty thoroughly. But of course the result is never the “real” thing. What emerges is not an “authentic” experience of another person’s life but something closer to the experiment of “walking a mile in their shoes.” The communities that we create on stage are fictional versions of life; as one critic put it, “…Revels is the village that should have been.” Which brings us to…fibs.

There is yet another shade in the spectrum of truthiness that colors the drama. Often referred to as “theatrical license,” this is the process that mixes truths, half-truths, and downright lies in service of the entertainment value of the show, or in order for the playwright to illuminate a character more brightly. This year’s Victorian Revels is a good example. Here are a few facts to counter the fictions and fibs that we saw fit to include:

- Sir Arthur Sullivan is the real composer of Gilbert and Sullivan fame who had a well-established reputation as a bona fide composer well before the Savoy operettas.
- Mrs. Fanny Ronalds was Sullivan’s “favorite amateur singer” who became associated with his art song, “The Lost Chord.” Fanny and Arthur could not publicly admit their close personal relationship since she and her estranged husband never divorced. Singing music hall numbers is a talent that we have conferred upon her for purposes of plot.
- The Crystal Palace, created in 1851, was dismantled and moved to East London after the Great Exhibition. Sullivan did have his musical works presented there but earlier than the turn of the century, by which time the Palace was a little the worse for wear.
- Harry Colcord was not the manager of Crystal Palace, but he was agent and manager to Blondin, the tightrope walker, who besides performing in the Crystal Palace, famously carried Colcord on his back across the Niagara Gorge.
- The popularity of the music hall persisted from the late Victorian period into the new century. Most of the songs we have chosen here are more accurately Edwardian than Victorian.
- The fun-loving Prince of Wales did indeed have an eye for the ladies and was a connoisseur of music halls and the pleasure palaces of the naughty nineties. Several theaters and halls were in fact named in his honor. His granddaughters were real, although it is unlikely that he took them to see a panto.

- The Christmas Pantomime (or “panto”) evolved from an 18th century English version of the Italian Commedia dell’Arte that included the Harlequinade, a musical diversion with stock characters.
- “Cinderella” with a score by Boris Fitinhoff-Schell was performed by the Russian Imperial Ballet with choreography by Enrico Cecchetti in 1893. It did not in fact tour to the Crystal Palace.
- The pandemic of “Russian Flu” that might have quarantined the company had they reached British shores actually occurred 1889–1890.
- Our panto version of “Cinderella” mixes traditional gags and routines from several historical eras. The male “Dames” and the “Billy” or “Buttons” characters would be familiar to contemporary British panto audiences.

Mark Twain famously said, “Never let the facts stand in the way of a good story!” Or was it Hemingway? I can certainly imagine them both saying it, which I suppose is what the adage is all about. There are facts and facts. Historical facts are the basis of our civilization but we have to remind ourselves that history is usually written by the victors. (By the way, who said that, Winston Churchill or Napoleon?)

Given the slippery nature of truth, it is curious that theater, by definition a world of lies, tricks, and artifice, where actors pretend to be other people, is the place audiences go to experience a suspension of disbelief.

The fun-loving Prince of Wales did indeed have an eye for the ladies and was a connoisseur of music halls and the pleasure palaces of the naughty nineties. Several theaters and halls were in fact named in his honor. His granddaughters were real, although it is unlikely that he took them to see a panto.
A joyful tale about a boy who dreamed of giving gifts to children.

Anyone curious about the musical state of affairs in Victoria’s England could do no better than to sit down with a volume of George Bernard Shaw’s music reviews. The famed Irish playwright, also known for his art, theater, and social criticism, made a living in his thirties as a critic of musical and dramatic performances in and around London. Taken together, his highly opinionated yet always accurate articles paint an astonishingly vivid and entertaining picture of musical and artistic life in England at the time. Shaw’s knowledge of music was encyclopedic and well grounded; from an early age he developed skill as a pianist and singer and could read orchestral scores fluently. And he was an extraordinarily colorful and earthy writer whose irrepressible humor bubbles up in nearly every sentence.

Shaw was a man of wide-ranging interests and unerringly high standards. He was curious about every kind of music performance from opera to pantomime, and he treated them all with the same unsparing and trenchant powers of observation. What he valued most was intelligence and discernment, both in performers and in audiences. What he could not abide was boorishness (at any socioeconomic level), pretentiousness (usually in the educated class) and—worst of all—indecision. It dismayed him that music hall audiences smoked and drank during performances, “soaking in lazy contemplation,” and he was equally scornful of status-obsessed aristocratic “Philistines” (a favorite pejorative) who looked forward to intermissions more than the work being presented and who “only run after the reputations of the solo singers.”

Shaw was unforgiving of promoters and impresarios, whether in the opera house or the music hall. Of the enormous triennial Handel Festival, staged at the Crystal Palace, he wrote that “the aims of the Festival-givers necessarily are, firstly, commercial; secondly, phenomenal; and, lastly artistic.” Of a Christmas pantomime performance he remarked, “What struck me most was the extraordinary profusion of artistic talent wasted through mere poverty of purpose.”

As for composers and artists, Shaw was by turns acerbic and enthusiastic. Most English oratorios, unless written by the standard-bearers Handel and Mendelssohn, he found a blend of “solemnity and triviality...a combination of frivolity and sensuality with hypocrisy and the most oppressive dullness,” in which “some dreary doctor of music wreaks his counterpoint on a string of execrable balderdash with Mesopotamia or some other blessed word for a title.” Ouch. Of choruses not equal to the challenge of Bach’s B Minor Mass, he remarked on “the buzzing and wheezing and puffing and all sorts of uncouth sounds which ladies and gentlemen unknowingly bring forth.”

When it came to praise, Shaw was lavish. Mozart’s symphonies and concertos are “far more beautiful and interesting than any of their kind produced since, by Beethoven or anyone else.” Beethoven, for his part, “melted his hearers into complete sentimentality by the tender beauty of his music, and then suddenly turned on them and mocked them with derisive trumpet blasts for being such fools.” On Berlioz’ Damnation of Faust Shaw waxed poetic, citing its “exquisite threads of melody, wonderful in their tenuity and delicacy, and the surpassingly strange and curious sounds and measures, ghostly in touch and quaint in tread, unearthly, unexpected, unaccountable, and full of pictures and stories.” He had mixed feelings about Arthur Sullivan but allowed that when Sullivan “plunged into the banalities and trivialities of Savoy opera...he taught the public to understand orchestral fun...[H]is instrumental jokes, which he never carried too far, were always in good taste; and his workmanship was unfailingly skillful and refined, even when the material was of the cheapest.” Shaw’s praise could at times seem like back-handed compliments; a performance of Mendelssohn’s Elijah at Albert Hall was “one of remarkable excellence...there was no screaming from the sopranos, nor bawling from the tenors, nor growling from the basses.”

Some of his most moving musical experiences happened far from London. Shaw often traveled to hear the orchestras and choruses of Leeds, Birmingham, Manchester, and other regional cities, where fashion and pretentiousness were much less in evidence than in the cultural capital. He attended a “magnificent performance” of Berlioz’ Fantastic Symphony by the Hallé Orchestra in Manchester. “At present no London band can touch this work at all, because no London band has learnt it thoroughly,” whereas “the Manchester band, knowing the work through and through, handles it with a freedom, intelligence, and spirit which bring out all its life and purpose.” In the tiny town of Penalt, across the border in Wales, he found a concert “not only refreshingly different from the ordinary London miscellaneous article, but much better.” He praised “naturally musical and artistic folk” and derived “greater pleasure than I often get from singers with far greater pretentions.”

Throughout Shaw’s writing runs a thread of love for the common people.

Through out Shaw’s writing runs a thread of love for the common people. He much preferred the “shilling gallery” of Albert Hall to the high-priced stalls. “Music can be better nourished on shilling, sixpenny, and threepenny seats...he left us with a remarkable record of musical life in 19th-century England...than on the St. James’s Hall scale,” he said. For him, a simple performance with understanding and passion was worth infinitely more than lavishly mounted, perfunctory productions.

From the humblest of village pageants to the most splendid London concerts and operas that money could buy, Shaw brought his keen intelligence, his love for music, his remarkable ear, his impeccable taste, his eminently readable prose, and his devilish wit to bear on every occasion. And in so doing he left us with a remarkable record of musical life in 19th-century England that rings with authenticity and relevance down through the decades.

Revels In Dance & Song

A summer camp week for families and revelers of all ages

Presented by Revels, Inc, Revels North, and the Country Dance and Song Society

August 8-15, 2015 at Ogontz Camp, Lyman NH

Join us for a week at Ogontz, a lush 300 acre residential camp nestled in the White Mountains. Participate in traditional dance and music while working with a Revels team to create a production incorporating choral singing, morris and sword dancing, children’s programs, puppets, and mummers’ plays. Plus swimming, canoeing, relaxation, and more! Families and adults with or without children, all welcome.

Revels’ latest CD features Victorian anthems, holiday carols, dance tunes, and music hall songs, all featured in this year’s holiday production. A cadre of soloists including David Coffin, Sarah deLima and Billy Meleady are joined here by The Revels Chorus of adults and children, The Parlour Orchestra, and Cambridge Symphonic Brass Ensemble. Buy the CD and enjoy music from this year’s Christmas Revels long after the holidays are over.

Available in the lobby.

Hear samples and purchase online at Revels.org where you’ll find Revels’ extensive catalog of CDs, songbooks, greeting cards, and educational products.
